THE CITY OF VALENCIA IN SPAIN.

Extract of a letter of recent date, from a young Bostonian now in Valencia, to the Editors of the Boston Patriot.

"I am suprised to find, that so fine a city as Valencia, containing upwards of one hundred thousand inhabitants, abounding in elegant and noble buildings, well worthy the attention of the historian and the inspection of the traveller—should have been so little known.

Valencia, from the sea, can be but partially seen, in consequence of the Groa, or shipping fort coming directly in front, so as to intercept the view. The immense tower of the cathedral, however, is perceptible a great distance; as also are many domes of the churches, which being covered with burnished tiles makes a very pleasing appearance. From the Groa to the city, the distance of which is about two miles, is an elegant walk called the Alameda, which is most beautifully adorned with orange, lemon, and mulberry trees, with a great profusion of the most choicest flowers and plants. The walk for pedestrians is paved with handsome flag stone, and on one side runs a small canal. The other is appropriated for flower arbours, benches, &c. The whole forming a most romantic and pleasing scene. On first entering the city by the gate of Del Mar, I was struck with the fine appearance of the piazza St. Domingo, which is a fine square, containing many noble buildings, particularly the custom-house, &c. From this I was led to expect an elegant city, but was soon disappointed, by finding those narrow and dirty streets which characterise all the principal cities in Spain.

The city contains many fine buildings, among which may be named the Cathedral, Exchange, Hospital, the archbishop's palace, and many convents and churches.—Smugglers chained in pairs are employed to clean and repair the streets.

One great nuisance is the multitude of beggars which infest the streets. It is impossible to pass twenty yards without meeting six or eight of them at their regular stands. There are also hundreds of other mendicants, called monks, who likewise traverse the streets to the great annoyance of strangers—nor are they the most modest beggars to be met with. They generally begin by demanding; especially if you are a stranger, an half dollar, but will very graciously condescend to accept of a copper quarto. The principal amusements are the theatre, dancing, &c. There is not a week passes however, but has more or less holidays, which bring with them their different processions. Sunday is considered a great day of amusement, and is generally devoted, except in the morning hour for mass, to horse racing, fencing, quoits, &c. and in the evening balls, cards and dancing.

The people here generally possess a great disregard for agriculture and commerce, & indeed for human industry in general; an excessive pride and arrogant contempt of all other nations, a temper of the most malignant cast which drives them to seek revenge in a most cowardly and dastard like manner: there are, however, some few exceptions in this general rule. They are also remarkable for their superstitious veneration of the clergy. The women are handsome, good tempered, and much prone to gallantry, which gives them an additional advantage in the eyes of a stranger.

The following will give you some faint idea of their superstition.

On St. Vincent's day (the patron of the kingdom of Valencia who flourished about 150 years ago) numerous stages are erected in all the principal squares of the city, on which are represented the miracles said to have been performed by this good Saint.—One representation is the Saint's recovering an immense rice cake that had been stolen; another stopping a ferocious Bull with his holy water sprinkler. A moor, who had fallen from the top of a house is kept suspended in air; the scattered members of a child that had been cut to pieces are instantly joined by a touch of his crucifix. What a sublime representation in honor of the deity.

The Host, or Sacrament, is administered to sick persons, who have been pronounced past recovery. It is carried in the day or night, as occasion may require, with great pomp and parade, escorted by a guard of soldiers, with a band of music. It moves slowly along, the monks chaunting, and bearing in their hands a long lighted candle of wax. This they believe is the real presence of the Deity. You are warned of its approach by the ringing of a small bell. As soon as it appears, down upon your knees you must go, and take off your hat, if you value your life. If in the night, lights must be placed in all your windows. If in the day, your balconies must be decorated with crimson silk, &c.

The country for several miles round Valencia is one continued plain, under the highest state of cultivation, presenting now, the appearance of a New England August. Luxuriant fields of wheat and corn, with plantations of olives, Mulberry, fig and orange tress, &c. The country, however, wants that diversity of scenery, so common and beautiful in America. You are soon tired of wandering over a prospect which presents the same object at every turn of the eye. The soil is extremely rich, and produces two crops of wheat a year. Every month brings with it new seed times and new harvests, so that the husband has no respite the year round. Apricots, straw berries, cherries, &c. are now in great perfection and plenty, and for about 80 cents sufficient could be bought to furnish a desert for ten people.

A few days since I visited, with a party of ladies and gentlemen, Murviedro, about 12 miles distant, where once stood the ancient Saguntum. The town contains about 500 inhabitants, who are principally engaged in agriculture. It is defended by a strong and large castle, where the French, consisting of 1000 men, kept at bay 8000 Spaniards and English, under General Roache, who were compelled to retire. Among the most conspicuous of the ruins are plainly to be seen the remains of a Roman amphitheatre, situated on the declivity of a hill; 9000 people it is said could be accommodated here and the gradations of the seats are still to be seen.

After all I have seen in the new world, I pant again to visit my dear and native place. I have seen quite enough of this country to disgust me, and to render the one I left far more valuable, I have seen sufficient of kings and nobles, to endear me still more to the beloved and simple Republicanism of my country:—That country whose rising greatness I contemplate with so much pleasure; that country of which I am proud to call myself a citizen. It is indeed with pride that I say it. I am a citizen of the only free country on earth. Feared and respected by all, whether enemies or friends.

EXTRAORDINARY CURE OF HYPOCHONDRIA.

A wealthy Swiss farmer much affected with hypochondria, came to Langenau to consult the celebrated Michael Schuppach, better known by the appellation of the mountain doctor. 'I have seven devils in my belly,' said he; 'no fewer than seven.' "There are more than seven," replied the doctor, with the utmost gravity; "if you count them right you will find eight." After questioning the patient concerning his case, he promised to cure him in eight days, during which time he would every morning rid him of one of his troublesome inmates at the rate of one louis d'or each.—"But," added he, "as the last will be much more difficult to expel than the others, I shall expect two louis d'ors for him.', The farmer agreed to these terms: the bargain was struck, and the doctor imposing upon all present, the necessity of secrecy, promised to give the nine louis d'ors to the poor of the parish. Next morning the imaginary demoniac was brought to him, and placed near a kind of machine which he had never seen before, by means of which he received an electric shock. The farmer roared out lustily—"there goes one!" cried the doctor, with the utmost gravity. The next day the same operation was repeated, the farmer bellowed as before, and the doctor coolly remarked, "another is off" In this manner he proceeded to the seventh. When he was preparing to attack the last Shuppach reminded his patient that he now had need of all his courage, for this was the captain of the gang, who would make a more obstinate resistance than any of the others. The shock was at this time so strong, as to extend the demoniac on the floor, 'Now they are all gone!' said the doctor, and ordered the farmer to be put to bed. On recovering himself, the latter declared he was completely cured; he paid the nine louis d'ors with abundance of thanks, and returned in the best spirits to his village. Credible witnesses attest this extraordinary cure, which proves the acuteness of the doctor, as well as the truth of Solomon's proverb, that with fools we must sometimes talk like a fool.

Dryden.—The attack upon the immorality of the stage, by Jeremy Collier and Sir Richard Blackmore is, perhaps, the most memorable era in the history of the English drama. In this honest and undistinguishing attack upon theatrical profligacy, Dryden bore a considerable share of rough treatment, and though he revolted at Blackmore's indiscriminate censure, yet to the chastisement of the rude Jeremy, in the spirit of a gentleman and a christian, he replied—"I shall say the less of Mr. Collier, because in many things he taxed me justly, and I have pleaded guilty to all thoughts and expressions of mine, which may truly be argued of obscenity, profaneness or immorality, and retract them. If he be my enemy, let him triumph; if he be my friend as I have given him no personal occasion to be otherwise, he will be glad of my repentance. It becomes me not to draw my pen in the defence of a bad cause, when I have so often drawn it for a good one." Immediately after this controversy Dryden died, and on that event the following lines were printed, having reference to the abuse of Blackmore and Collier.

John Dryden enemies had three,
Sir Dick, Old Nick, and Jeremy.
The doughty knight was forc'd to yield,
The other two have kept the field;
But, had his life been something older,
He'd foil'd the devil and the Collier.

A warning to those who put too much Water in their Grog.

AN INDIAN VERDICT.

John Tatson an Indian native of Lyme, in Connecticut, being found dead on a winter's morning, not far from a tavern where he had been drinking freely of spirituous liquors the evening before, the Indians immediately assembled a jury of their own tribe, who, after examining the corpse of the defunct, unanimously agreed, "That the said Tatson's death was occasioned by the freezing of a large quantity of water in his body that had been mixed with the rum he drank."

NORTHAMPTON, (Mass.) October 1.

Last week, on Friday, the celebrated yoke of Oxen, bred and owned by Colonel Chapin, of Springfield, was sold for $1000! They were purchased through the influence of a distinguished farmer and gentleman of Jamaica Plain, and will be exhibited at the approaching Cattle Show in Brighton.—One of these cattle is said to exceed the famous bullock in England, and to surpass the Bissel ox, and every thing of the kind heretofore produced in this country. We feel a gratification, that the enterprize and laudable efforts of Col. Chapin have been so handsomely rewarded.

PITTSBURGH.

TUESDAY OCTOBER 14, 1817.

In every ward in the city of Philadelphia; in the Northern Liberties, in the district of Southwark, Moyamensing, Kingsessing, and in Bristol township, in the county of Philadelphia, the friends of Gen. Hiester have carried their Inspectors by large majorities.

In the towns of Lancaster, Harrisburgh, Carlisle and Chambersburgh, and in all the townships in Franklin county, the friends of Hiester have also elected their Inspectors.

In Reading there were 60 votes to 1, in favour of the Hiesterite Inspector.

A Court Martial, of which Col. King, of the 4th Infantry, was President, lately convened at the city of Washington, have honorably acquitted Col. Franklin Wharton of the charges exhibited against him.

The editor of the Gleaner, (published in Wilksbarre) who hitherto supported the cause of William Findlay, has at last acknowledged his conviction, when speaking of certain transactions of which William Findlay stands accused, that "there is something rotten in the state of Denmark." He observes "that the 10,000 dollar transaction, which was so resolutely denied by the supporters of Mr. Findlay, appears to be inevitably fastened upon him.

It is a remarkable fact and well worthy of notice, that no attempt whatever is made by the treasurer's advocates to justify, excuse, or even explain his conduct, as respects the management of the treasury. The exchange with Acheson is admitted—after repeated denials he confesses the fact, and submits to the judgement of the people. The annual borrowings to replace the annual deficiencies for the moment of settlement, are established by the solemn verdict of five impartial and intelligent arbitrators, and but one of them were even attempted to be explained. Address after address appears—circular letter after circular is written, all as silent as the grave. on those charges so serious and so odious: and the people, in the very fact of this tacit admission of the truth are expected and besought to vote for William Findlay for the governor's chair of Pennsylvania!!!

Congress Frigate.

Interesting journal of her cruise, and of the object of it.

United States frigate Congress, Harbour of Port-au-Prince, St. Domingo, 23d July.

We arrived here yesterday after a passage of 30 days from the Balize. Nothing worthy of remark happened during that time. We leave this on the 25th for Cape Henry. Port-au-Prince bears the marks of a well laid out city. the houses are principally built of wood. two stories high. At present a great number of them are in ruins. The harbour is spacious and good, capable of containing 4 or 500 vessels. It has been well fortified, but at present the fortifications are in ruins—President Petion is a yellow man, about 5 feet 8 inches high, rather thin, with an open countenance, and the gentleman. He governs with mildness and is beloved by his people. The government is a military republic. His naval force consists of one frigate, built by Adam and Noah Brown, mounting 32 guns, one corvette mounting guns, formerly the General Gates of N. York, and one of 16 guns, formerly the U. S. brig Fire Fly. I do not know what his military force may be computed at, as every man has to turn out when his services are required. The people are generally indolent.

CAPE HENRY, 2d August.

We arrived here yesterday. The contest between the two black princes is striking as respects their form of government. Here every thing is carried on in a Military style. Baron Dupe is the king's prime minister. He is a black man and is well informed. The king is at his country seat seven miles in the interior. The city remains as the revolution left it, mostly in ruins. The harbour is good, but rather difficult of access. It is but indifferently defended. The king has an immense fortification 20 miles in the interior, situated on a mountain about 2500 feet above the level of the sea. It is said there are three hundred pieces of cannon mounted on it.—This he intends for his retreat in case of invasion, and has it well stored with provisions and ammunition. He has schools established throughout his dominions. There is one at this place on the Lancasterian principle, consisting of 150 scholars, principally the sons of noblemen or officers. It appears to be his wish to enlighten his subjects as much as possible, and I believe him to be one of the most despotic princes of the age. Every person is the servant of the king.---He calls on them as circumstances may require. Prince John, the brother of the king, died about a month ago.---He lay in state 21 days. During this time they fired a gun every half hour, for which his wife paid $4 per pound for the powder. We leave this to-morrow for the island of Margaretta.

PAMPARA, Island of Margaretta, 21st August.

We arrived here yesterday and found this place entirely in ruins, in possession of the patriots. Gen. Morillo had been here endeavouring to establish the royal authority, but hearing of the success of the patriots on the Maine, he drew off his force on the 18th ult. consisting of 3000 men, to protect that quarter. During his stay on this Island he succeeded in taking this place and made an attempt on Assumption, the capital of the Island, but was repulsed. The Governor of the Island paid us a visit to day.—He estimates the loss of the royalists while at this Island at 1500 men. He further states that the whole province of Guyannais is in possession of the patriots. They murder men, women and children without distinction. It is said the women took an active part at the attack of Assumption, and wherever they found one of the royal party wounded they despatched him immediately. We leave this to morrow for Cumana, where we, no doubt, shall hear another story. Pampater is situated on the E. S. E. part of the Island.

CUMANA, August 24.

We arrived here yesterday, where we found Gen. Morillo with a force said to consist of 5000 men. The royalists ackowledge a loss of 700 men during their stay at Margaretta. The news is confirmed that the whole province of Guyannais is in possession of the patriots, and it is supposed they intend making an attack on Carraccas. Gen Morillo leaves this in a day or two for that place, where he is mustering all his forces to oppose them. We leave this to-morrow for Barcelona.

BARCELONA, 29th August.

We arrived here yesterday, and leave this in the course of the day for Laguira.—This place has suffered much by the revolution. Last year Sir Gregor M'Greger took it; shortly after it was re-taken by the royalists, when they put every man to the sword, who were enemies to their cause. The emancipation of this country is yet doubtful. There appears to be no system with the patriots. Although Bolivar styles himself commander in chief, it is a mere nominal title. Any person who can raise 2 or 300 men, declares himself a general, and without rendering any service to the common cause, he becomes a free-booter.

LAGURIA, 4th September.

This city suffered much by the earthquake in 1812. The houses are meanly built, the streets narrow, crooked, and badly paved, like most of the Spanish towns on the Maine. Morillo and his force arrived here yesterday. He is marching his troops from Carraccas. Every thing respecting the revolution is kept secret at this place. We leave this to-morrow for the United States. You will now ask what has become of Mr. Tyler, and what was the object of our cruise. Mr. Tyler was sent out as the agent of our government to that of Christophe's, to demand monies for property confiscated, but the black prince refused paying any such debts.

The object of our cruise on the Spanish Maine is not known to me. It is conjectured by some that it was to ascertain the Spanish force in that quarter in case of a war with the Spanish government.

HAMPTON ROADS, 24th Sept.

We arrived here yesterday after a passage of 20 days from Laguira. Mr. Tyler died on board the 16th inst. after an illness of 11 days.

P. S. We go to Norfolk the first fair wind.

The visit of Gen Scot to Quebec, where he was on the 4th inst. seems to have drawn from the public prints in Canada a hint to the British officers, that the talents of Gen. S. presented him to the eyes of his government as the most suitable officer they could send to Europe to obtain military information. We have heard the British authorities offered to shew him the fortifications; but he considered it a mere compliment and avoided all appearances of inspecting their strength. Wash. C. Gaz.

OFFICE HUNTING!

In Lehigh county fourteen, in Franklin eleven, and in Northampton six persons advertise themselves as candidates for the office of sheriff, at the ensuing election.

Short jobs and well paid.—Mr. Pinkney, who went out last year minister to Naples, and thence to Russia, is about to return to the United States, on account of the severity of the climate of the latter place. The out-fit for the two courts, and the year's salary will amount to 27,000 dollars. As Mr. Gallatin is said to have expressed a wish to retire from the French court, Mr. P. may perhaps take France in his way home, and touch for 18,000 more.

At the present September session of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, in Hampshire county, Stephen Allen, was convicted of Burglary in second degree, and sentenced to confinement for life to hard labour. Allen, according to his own account, seems to have been a most atrocious offender.—He says he murdered a Mr. Mourse, in the vicinity of Albany. and taking his money threw him into the river. That he aided in the murder of Judge Hill and Son during the last war, on the confines of Canada.—That he has once or twice robbed the mail, particularly once in S. Carolina, of 500 dollars. That he has been sentenced, by a court martial, to be shot for desertion; and has been tried for the murder of Miss Hamilton at Athens, but acquitted.

A picture of a good ruler.—On a time during the last century, Kien Lung, Emperor of China, being in his 89th year, and having reigned 60 years, voluntarily resigned the Imperial authority to his son;—and the following paragraphs are a part of his valedictory address to his people, from the English translation of Sir George Staunton.

"When the administration of this empire was committed to our charge, we indeed beheld before us a task of serious difficulty; but we were soon rendered thereby only more earnest and solicitous in avoiding all deviation from the strict line of conduct we had prescribed to ourselves. All our wide and vastly extended domain shared equally our attention; and frequently during the darkness of the night, as well as the middle hour of the day, we have attended, unconscious of fatigue, in the councils of our ministers for the purpose of communicating our decisions on their reports, and of issuing new ordinances for the public weal, that thus no day might be permitted to pass away, without being duly filled and employed.

"Thus, during the long and eventful period of our reign, the weighty affairs of government have been the objects of our constant regard: and, deeply impressed with the critical importance of the charge, we never ventured to pronounce the objects of government to have been so completely attained or the peace of the empire so immutably established, as to admit of our relaxing our efforts, or indulging in repose."

Pittsburgh, Oct. 14, 1817.

PHILIPSBURG.

The Subscriber having agreed with JAMES ROSS, Esq. of Pittsburgh, for the purchase of his real property, on the west bank of the Ohio River, opposite WELLSBURG, will offer for SALE, on the Second Monday in November next, the

Lots in said Town,

By him laid out upon the Premises.

The Terms of Sale will be as follows, viz.

PAYMENT to be made in three equal annual instalments from the time of Sale, without interest, with an allowance of a discount of eight per cent for prompt payment—bond with good personal security to be given by the purchaser, payable to the proprietor's agent, Thomas Johnston, in the Old Bank of Steubenville, or in some convenient Bank on the western waters, which may be hereafter named for that purpose.

Upon receiving payment for any Lot or Lots sold, Mr. Ross will execute conveyances for the same of a good and indisputable estate—for this purpose the conveyances will be deposited in the Bank, to be taken away by the purchaser upon making his payments.

The right of having or keeping a FERRY, will be reserved to the proprietor.

It is believed that no property of the kind has been offered for sale upon the western waters possessing more natural or accidental advantages. It is situated on the bank of Ohio, opposite Wellsburgh, in the centre of perhaps the richest and best improved body of lands within several hundred miles of it; in a healthy climate, and in the vicinity of towns that have flourished, and are now flourishing, but in which unimproved property is holden at so high a price, as to prevent the lower and most useful classes of society from holding.

WELLSBURGH has long been the largest exporting town within a great distance, of articles the growth of the country. The settlement is filled with Mills and Mill-seats, abounds with Coal and excellent Water. The Town offered for sale can be supplied in the dryest season, with spring water of the first quality, sufficient for the population of a large city.

A public road is now laying out from the city of Pittsburgh direct to this place, which it is believed will furnish the shortest route from that city to Smithfield, through Cadiz and Cambridge to Zanesville, and also through Mountpleasant to Zanesville.

An act of incorporation has passed the Assembly of Virginia, for Turnpiking both that road, and another to Washington, to go into effect when the Assembly of Pennsylvania shall pass similar laws. No doubt is entertained that the road from Washington will be provided for at the next session, and the work commenced in the ensuing year These roads will make Wellsburgh and the New Town the principal thoroughfare of travelling from east to west, and from west to east, connected as they will be with the eastern and northern states through Pittsburgh, and with the middle states by the great Cumberland road at Washington.

Persons desiring to purchase property in the proposed Town, would do well to remember the success of those who, at the time of their respective establishments, purchased town property in Steubenville, Smithfield, Cadiz, &c. Such has been the rise in value of the property. It cannot be doubted that the same success will attend those who may purchase in the town now proposed for sale.

The articles of agreement between the subscriber and Mr. Ross, will be shewn on the day of sale and the particular terms of public sale be more clearly stated by the Agent.

P. Doddridge.
